

Open Forum

If you have a problem to solve and you're looking for ideas, or maybe you want to challenge me to start a blog series on a new problem that you think we should tackle, please comment here!

I encourage any students with interests or questions about any engineering or science field to inquire here. I can at least encourage you with tips on where to look for information and guidance. In some cases I might have some direct experience to share. At a minimum I can offer some encouragement!